This is a civil action filed pro se by a state prison inmate. Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1), and Local Civil Rule 73.02(B)(2)(e) (D.S.C.), this magistrate judge is authorized to review all pretrial matters in such pro se cases and to submit findings and recommendations to the district court. See 28 U.S.C. §§ 1915(e); 1915A (as soon as possible after docketing, district courts should review prisoner cases to determine whether they are subject to summary dismissal).

I. Factual Background

Jabbar Jomo Straws (“Plaintiff”) is an inmate at Broad River Correctional Institution, part of the South Carolina Department of Corrections (“SCDC”) prison system. He is serving a lengthy sentence on several Lexington County, South Carolina convictions entered on a jury verdict in 2006. This court recently denied Plaintiff’s petition for writ of habeas corpus, filed pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2254, in which Plaintiff challenged the same Lexington County convictions. Straws v. Stevenson, No. 5:13-cv-3484-BHH (petition dismissed with prejudice on the merits); see Colonial Penn Ins. Co. v. Coil, 887 F.2d 1236, 1239 (4th Cir. 1989) (“[t]he most frequent use of judicial notice of ascertainable facts is in noticing the content of court records.”).

In the Complaint under review, Plaintiff asks this court to award him damages from the Chief Justice of the South Carolina Supreme Court, Defendant Toal, and the South Carolina Attorney General, Defendant Wilson, based on his contentions that his due-process rights are being violated by his continued confinement on the Lexington County convictions. Compl. 3, ECF No. 1. Plaintiff also asks this court to vacate his convictions and sentence. Id. at 5.

II. Standard of Review

Under established local procedure in this judicial district, a careful review has been made of Plaintiff's pro se Complaint filed in this case. This review has been conducted pursuant to the procedural provisions of 28 U.S.C. §§ 1915, 1915A, and the Prison Litigation Reform Act of 1996, and in light of the following precedents: Denton v. Hernandez, 504 U.S. 25 (1992); Neitzke v. Williams, 490 U.S. 319, 324-25 (1989); Haines v. Kerner, 404 U.S. 519 (1972); Nasim v. Warden, Md. House of Corr., 64 F.3d 951 (4th Cir. 1995); Todd v. Baskerville, 712 F.2d 70 (4th Cir. 1983); Boyce v. Alizaduh, 595 F.2d 948 (4th Cir. 1979).

Pro se complaints are held to a less stringent standard than those drafted by attorneys, Gordon v. Leeke, 574 F.2d 1147, 1151 (4th Cir. 1978), and a federal district court is charged with liberally construing a complaint filed by a pro se litigant to allow the development of a potentially meritorious case. Erickson v. Pardus, 551 U.S. 89, 94 (2007). When a federal court is evaluating a pro se complaint, the plaintiff's allegations are assumed to be true. De'Lonta v. Angelone, 330 F.3d 630, 630 n.1 (4th Cir. 2003). Nevertheless, the requirement of liberal construction does not mean that this court can ignore a clear failure in the pleading to allege facts which set forth a claim currently cognizable in a federal district court. Weller v. Dep't of Soc. Servs., 901 F.2d 387, 391 (4th Cir. 1990). Even under this less stringent standard, the Complaint filed in this case is subject to summary dismissal under the provisions of 28 U.S.C. § 1915(e)(2)(B).

III. Discussion

Plaintiff's Complaint is subject to summary dismissal based on the United States Supreme Court's decision in Heck v. Humphrey, 512 U.S. 477 (1994). With respect to actions filed pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983 such as the present one alleging constitutional violations and/or other improprieties in connection with state criminal convictions and sentences,¹ the Court stated:

We hold that, in order to recover damages [or other relief]² for allegedly unconstitutional conviction or imprisonment, or for other harm whose unlawfulness would render a conviction or sentence invalid, . . . a § 1983 plaintiff must prove that the conviction or sentence has been reversed on direct appeal, expunged by executive order, declared invalid by a state tribunal authorized to make such a determination, or called into question by a federal court's issuance of a writ of habeas corpus, 28 U.S.C. § 2254. A claim for damages bearing that relationship to a conviction or sentence that has not been so invalidated is not cognizable under § 1983. Thus, when a state prisoner seeks damages in a § 1983 suit, the district court must consider whether a judgment in favor of the plaintiff would necessarily imply the invalidity of his conviction or sentence; if it would, the complaint must be dismissed unless the plaintiff can demonstrate that the conviction or sentence has already been invalidated.

¹ Section 1983 is the procedural mechanism through which Congress provided a private civil cause of action based on allegations of federal constitutional violations by persons acting under color of state law. Jennings v. Davis, 476 F.2d 1271 (8th Cir. 1973). The purpose of § 1983 is to deter state actors from using badge of their authority to deprive individuals of their federally guaranteed rights and to provide relief to victims if such deterrence fails. McKnight v. Rees, 88 F.3d 417(6th Cir. 1996) (emphasis added). Plaintiff's claims of unconstitutional confinement fall within the coverage of § 1983.

² See Johnson v. Freeburn, 29 F. Supp. 2d 764, 772 (S.D. Mich. 1998) (under Heck v. Humphrey, nature of relief sought is not critical question; rather, it is the grounds for relief); see also Clemente v. Allen, 120 F.3d 703 (7th Cir. 1997) (injunctive relief sought).

Heck, 512 U.S. at 486-87. By the above statements, the United States Supreme Court ruled that until a criminal conviction is set aside by way of appeal, post-conviction relief (“PCR”), habeas, or otherwise, any civil rights action based on the conviction and related matters will be barred.

Plaintiff’s present allegations of due-process violations in connection with his 2006 Lexington County convictions, if true, would require this court to find that those convictions are invalid. However, as stated above, Plaintiff has unsuccessfully pursued an initial § 2254 petition in this court in which he alleged that his convictions were unconstitutional under the Fifth, Sixth, and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution and were illegal due to prosecutorial misconduct and judicial error. Moreover, before he filed his § 2254 petition in this court, Plaintiff was unsuccessful in his challenges to his convictions in state court through a direct appeal and a PCR application. Thus, his convictions remain legally valid and binding at this time. As a result, under Heck v. Humphrey, this court may not consider Plaintiff’s allegations pursuant to § 1983, and this case is subject to summary dismissal without issuance of service of process as to both Defendants.

IV. Recommendation

Accordingly, it is recommended that the District Court dismiss the Complaint in this case without prejudice. See Brown v. Briscoe, 998 F.2d 201, 202-04 (4th Cir. 1993); see also 28 U.S.C. § 1915(e)(2)(B); 28 U.S.C. § 1915A (as soon as possible after docketing, district courts should review prisoner cases to determine whether they are subject to summary dismissal).

IT IS SO RECOMMENDED.
